

St John

The Most Venerable Order of the Hospital of St John

2024 Banner and Flag Handbook

Introduction

A Banner is a square or rectangular heraldic flag which has the Arms across its whole surface and the word flag is a general term and covers all types of banners, standards, colours, and the many other types that exist. A Colour is a flag flown by a ship or carried by an army regiment, or air force squadron. It has a military connotation. St John Ambulance uses Colours. In St John we generally use the term 'banners' when carrying and 'flags' for flying from a fixed flagpole. Some establishments or units may also refer to their flags as 'standards' or 'colours'.

In the Order of St John context a Banner represents either the Order (The Great Banner/Order Banner), an Establishment (the Banner of a Priory, Commandery, the Eye Hospital Group, or Association), or an individual (Personal Banner). It carries the approved arms of the Establishment or of the individual and where appropriate under Statutes of the Order, includes the arms of the Order. Banners are mounted on a staff and carried by an individual. The Banners of Priories, Commanderies and Bailiffs and Dames Grand Cross (Grade Is) hang in the Priory Church of the Priory of England and the Islands.

Flags are hoisted up a flag pole outside a building to signal that part of St John is based at this location, or that the person that they represent is present in the building.

Banners and Colours must always to be treated with reverence and dignity. They can be dedicated, ie received, and blessed by a member of the Clergy.

The Great Banner of the Order

The Great Banner of the Order displays the ancient arms of the Order and bears an augmentation of honour, being embellished with a representation of the Sovereign's Crest in the first quarter, an especial mark of Royal favour granted by His Majesty King George V.

The Great Banner of the Order shall be 89.5cm in height, 111cm in width with a 5cm fringe of alternate white and red sections 5cm wide bordering the Banner on three sides. The limbs of the cross thereon shall be 23.5cm wide and the representation of the Sovereign's Crest in the first quarter shall be depicted as large as may conveniently be placed in that quarter. The Great Banner of the Order shall be flown from a staff on the top of which shall be a representation of the Sovereign's Crest

The Great Banner of the Order shall be flown:

- at all times at the headquarters of the Order (St John House, Charterhouse Mews, Clerkenwell, London, EC1M 6BB, United Kingdom);
- at all times, where practicable, over the headquarters of each Priory and Commandery, and at the Eye Hospital;
- when practicable, over the headquarters of each St John Association;
- on other places on St John's Day and on 8 September each year (being the anniversary of the relief of Malta in 1565); and

- by the Sovereign Head, Grand Prior and the Lord Prior whenever and wherever they think fit, but by no other Member of the Order.

A flag similar to the Great Banner but without the fringe, or a flag bearing the Priory Arms, may be flown in place of the Great Banner, in which case the staff need not carry the finial representation of the Sovereign's Crest. The dimensions of the flag will vary, and it is to be at a 3:2 ratio in regard to width/height.

The Great Banner of the Order may be carried or flown when in procession or in session by:

- the Grand Council;
- the Executive Committee; and
- Priory and Commandery Chapters.

When carried a cross belt should be used as it is heavy. It is always carried vertically upright with dignity and poise by a suitably robed member of the Ceremonial Staff. The staff is held in the right hand, with the bottom corner of the Banner also being held. This stops the flag from 'flying' and hence causing control issues with the staff. White gauntlet gloves should be used at all times when handling the Great Banner.

Great Banner and other flags at half-mast

All Order members are listed on a roll held by an Establishment, or the Central roll held by the Order Chancery. On the death of any member of the Order, the Chancery of the Establishment in which the member is listed should be notified as soon as is practical so that it can be recorded.

If the member is a Grade I Bailiff or Dame Grand Cross, the Order Chancery and the Chancery of the Priory of England and the Islands should also be informed of their passing. The tradition of the Order is that the flags at Charterhouse Mews and St John's Gate are lowered to half-mast or if that is not practical, a black mourning ribbon is attached. The Priors of Priories are responsible for the protocols concerning the flying of flags at half-mast in their territories.

Half-mast refers to a flag flying below the summit of the pole. It is a symbol of mourning and respect. It is common for the phrase to be taken literally and for a flag to be flown halfway up the flagpole. This is the custom in many territories. In St John, as a general rule the flag should be lowered by the width of a flag allowing room for an 'invisible flag of death' flying above. On all occasions the flag should be hoisted to the summit and then lowered to the half-mast position.

Subject to any special rules or commands which may apply in any territory as to flag etiquette flags should be flown at half-mast on the announcement of the death and until the funeral of:

- the Sovereign Head (except on Proclamation Day);
- a member of the Royal Family styled 'Royal Highness';
- other members of the Royal Family;
- the Grand Prior;
- Bailiffs and Dames Grand Cross; and
- on such other occasions as the Grand Prior or the Lord Prior may direct.

Also, at the discretion of the Prior of a Priory (or, in a Vice Regal Priory, the person as delegated by the Prior to make such decisions on their behalf), Priory flags may be lowered for national mourning and for the death of very senior officials. The same discretion is given to the Chair of the Eye Hospital Group, the Commander of a Commandery, and the Chair of an Association for their establishment flags.

When flags of the Order are at half-mast, other flags on the same stand of flagpoles should also be at half-mast, or not flown at all. Equally, when other flags are at half mast, the flags the Order should be flown at half-mast.

Other procedures relating to flags

When the Great Banner of the Order is being flown with other flags of the Order or an Establishment, each flag should be the same size (or have the same width – the measurement from top to bottom) and should fly from a separate flagpole. The Great Banner of the Order should be raised first and lowered last unless all the flags can be raised and lowered simultaneously. Flags must be raised and lowered in a dignified manner.

The Senior Flag should always fly from the senior flagpole, which is either the tallest or the furthest to the right (from the point of view) of the flagpole.

At the discretion of the Grand Prior or Lord Prior, the Great Banner of the Order can be used as a pall for a coffin. It should be placed so that the top left corner of the flag is over the deceased's left shoulder. The Great Banner of the Order should be removed before interment or cremation and folded. The same discretion is given to the Chair of the Eye Hospital Group, the Commander of a Commandery, and the Chair of an Association for establishment banners

Banners and flags of the Sovereign Head, Grand Prior and of The Princess Royal

The banners of the Sovereign Head, Grand Prior and The Princess Royal display their Arms with the Arms of the Order in chief. In addition to the Great Banner of the Order, they may be flown at any St John premises on those days on which it is the intention of the Sovereign Head, the Grand Prior or The Princess Royal to visit those premises. The flag of the Grand Prior or The Princess Royal shall be flown at half-mast on days of national mourning, and on other occasions as directed.

The flag of the Sovereign Head is never flown at half-mast.

Precedence of personal banners and flags within the Order is as follows:

- Sovereign Head;
- Grand Prior;
- any other member of the Royal Family who is also a Grade I member of the Order;
- Lord Prior;
- Great Banner of the Order;
- Priory flag;
- flag of St John of Jerusalem Eye Hospital;
- Commandery flag;
- flag of St John Association; and
- flag of St John Ambulance.

Personal Banners

A personal banner depicts an armigerous person's arms. An armiger is a person entitled to bear arms. Such a person is said to be armigerous. Bailiffs and Dames Grand Cross being armigerous are entitled to a personal banner depicting his or her Arms with the Arms of the Order in chief. Personal banners may not be displayed, and should not be processed, until they have been formally presented to HRH The Grand Prior, or his representative.

Grade I Bailiffs or Dames Grand Cross, Priors (Chancellors of Vice Regal Priories of New Zealand, Canada, and Australia), and the Chair of the Eye Hospital Group who are armigerous are entitled to have their banner carried immediately after them at a ceremony at which robes are worn.

Personal banners shall be 91.5cm square with the Arms of the Order in chief 28cm in height and 91.5cm in width, the dimension of the white cross shall be 5cm. The 2 alternate colour fringe can be 4cm deep.

Banner of the Lord Prior

In addition to the Great Banner of the Order, the banner of the Lord Prior may be flown at any St John premises on those days on which it is the intention of the Lord Prior to visit those premises.

The Banner of the Lord Prior Professor Mark Compton AM

The top third depicts the Order's Arms-in-Chief (the Royal Crest and the white cross on a red background). The green background is the universal colour of healthcare. The red cross in the centre is from the Arms of the state of New South Wales, Mark's home. The sun at the centre of the cross is the heraldic symbol of learning and enlightenment. (Mark is honoured to have spent his life teaching and learning.) The four Amalfi/Maltese crosses represent Mark's lifetime in St John, and the four generations of the Compton family (so far) who have been (or continue to be) active members of St John.

Banners of other Great Officers

Banner of the Chancellor Tom Budd

The banner contains a simplified version of the family's arms, which depict the blue waters of the Pacific Ocean on the north coast of New South Wales where Tom grew up, with three humpback whales breaching. The whales migrate along the coast in large numbers in July and August each year and can be seen from the beaches and headlands.

Banners of The Former Great Officers

The Banner of Captain Sir Norman Lloyd-Edwards KCVO RD

The two Celtic harps symbolise Wales and refer to Norman's parents who were both musicians and to their two sons. They are gold on a red background above a Bishop's mitre which is also gold on a blue background (referring to his time as Chapter Clerk to Llandaff Cathedral, his involvement in Church life, and his father who was a Church Warden). The red is to symbolise Wales and blue the sea his Naval connections.

The Banner of the Right Reverend John (Jack) Nicholls

The chosen colours are red and white to represent the red and white roses of Lancaster and York. Jack is a Lancastrian by birth, breeding and conviction but served as a missionary in Yorkshire, teaching at the College of the Resurrection, Mirfield and latterly as Bishop of Sheffield. Three of our four children were born in Lancashire, one in Yorkshire. The four roses represent his four grandsons. The sheaf of arrows is symbolic of Sheffield, being part of the city's coat of arms.

St John

The Banner of The Hon Dr Neil Conn AO

The reversed white chevron replicates the front gable of Government House, Darwin, replete with finial/lightning conductor, signifies Dr Conn's service as Administrator of the Northern Territory and the referees to his period as the Deputy Prior of the Order for the Northern Territory. The three stars represent Dr and Mrs Conn's three children and may also be seen as bright stars in a Northern Territory summer night; and the blue background represents Mrs Lesley Conn's maiden name of Flood and the enormous contribution she has made to her husband's career of public service.

St John

The Banner of Stuart Shilson LVO

St John

The Banner of Patrick Burgess OBE DL

The Arms are family Arms. The green and yellow chevrons recall Somerset from whence Patrick's family hails, the tower stands for fortitude and strength of purpose, and the cross crosslets (not Jerusalem crosses) stand for faith.

St John

The Banner of The Sub-Prior John Mah CD QC

St John

Banner of Dr Gillian Willmore

The overall structure of the banner, a cross in palatinate purple, alludes to the Cuthbert Cross of the County, University and Cathedral of Durham and an ancient Christian heritage. The flying open books express lifelong interest in English and European literature as well as Theology, and dedication to teaching. The central golden circles at the centre allude to family life and the Willmore Conjecture which relates to the energy of a torus (a doughnut shape), a mathematical insight which has resulted in internationally creative work in geometry and many sciences.

The Banner of Mairi Christina Arthur

The blue field with the three heads of bears is based on those of the chief of Clan Forbes of Scotland, Mairi's birthplace and Forbes being her birth name. The acorns signify strength and allude to oak trees surrounding her house. The red and white colours signify Canada, her place of residence and citizenship.

St John

The Banner of Robert White

The predominant white colour of the shield is emblematic of Robert's family name. Symbolizing purity, it also represents his service and kindness for others. The disc in the centre refers to him and the central place of volunteerism in his life, while the branches allude to its positive effects spreading to all parts of society – represented by the border – and beyond.
